The TV series "Chuck" this last week had some dialogue on the benefits of carrying one's gun with them ( Chuck Versus the Predator). Chuck ( Zachary Levi) formulated a mission at the Buy More electronic store and insisted the team — Sarah (Yvonne Strahovski) and Casey ( Adam Baldwin) — not carry guns. Chuck then gets captured by a Fulcrum Agent...

Fulcrum Agent: (speaking to Chuck, Casey, and Sarah) You get one chance — drop your guns.

Chuck: Um, sir, they don't have any guns. I personally put this mission together and I forbade them from packing.

Fulcrum Agent: (mystified) Why would you do that?

Chuck: (making things up as he went) I don't know, I think that guns make things too easy, and I like my spies to be tough. Look, you're not going to shoot anyone, right?

Fulcrum Agent: It would be unprofessional not to.

[Casey pulls out a gun and shoots Fulcrum Agent]

Chuck: You had a gun?

Casey: I always have a gun.

A lesson some might learn the hard way. Other Americans are glad they've had the same attitude Casey had about carrying their guns with them (for examples from this week see :
